Campus Safety: Prevention with a Purpose

Joseph A. Hendry Jr. PSP, CLEE-Senior Director of On-Site Services at Navigate 360

Campus safety takes the entire community. From leadership, law enforcement and security personnel to student affairs, counseling and the students themselves, it's vital for everyone to understand how they can better identify concerning behaviors and prevent harm to self and others on their campuses. Through cross-functional collaboration, training, tools and technology, it is possible to create prevention processes and encourage participation in the detection of early warning signs. With rising mental health and public safety concerns top of mind for many this school year, this is not a webinar you'll want to miss.

Webinar Objectives

- Identify strategies and best practices for effective prevention through training, tools and technology.
- Learn why students are in the best position to report concerning behaviors and how campus stakeholders can encourage this action.
- Recognize why it requires compassion to report and respond to mental health crises.
