

Virtual Light After Loss Training Opportunity

“Supervision, Suicide and Supervisees”

Wednesday, August 30th from 11AM - 1PM

2 CEUs

The suicide of a client can have pervasive professional and personal impact on a supervisee. This presentation offers an opportunity for supervisors to widen their understanding of these possible impacts and how their supervisory relationship with a supervisee can protect the supervisee from the most distressing impacts. Supervisors will learn what the possible impact of a client suicide may be on a supervisee, how these impacts may differ between a graduate student and a licensed supervisee, engage in reflective activities to better understand the culture and climate of their site, and learn additional suggestions to enhance their supervision to both prepare for and appropriately respond to the suicide of a client.

During this training, supervisors will:

- Gain an understanding of the personal and professional impact of a client suicide on supervisees including differences between graduate student supervisee and licensed clinician supervisee responses to a client suicide
- Integrate additional education training assessment and trust building in their supervision to help decrease the negative impact of a client suicide
- Have an enhanced understanding of supervision components that happen within and outside of the direct supervisory relationship and supervision sessions
